ACKNOWLEDGE IT

It is Has to Bow to the Inevitable—
Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Barre given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

George L. Cummings, engineer, living at 13 Branch street, Barre, Vt., says: "Eight years ago Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at E. A. Drown's drug store, stopped a constant dull aching in the small of my back and through the kidneys, which was always more severe after a hard day's work. I was convinced that Doan's Kidney Pills acted up to the representations made for them, and I told of my experience in a statement published in our Barre papers. In addition to the aching in my back there was a distressing urinary weakness which was most annoying. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of all these troubles and there have only been slight recurrences since. At such times I have taken a few doses of the pills and the attack was always promptly checked. I have recommended your remedy to scores of people and know of many who have the same good opinion of it that I have."

For sale by all dealers. Price 20 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

PINLAND DIET ABOLISHES ALCOHOL FROM COUNTRY

Requires Sanction of the Czar Before It Is Effective.

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 2.—The Diet yesterday adopted unanimously without a roll call the alcohol bill prohibiting absolutely the manufacture of alcohol in Finland or its importation into Finland. As the measure affects Russia's tariff relations with foreign countries it is not certain that the emperor will sanction the measure.

In view of the passage of the bill temperance celebrations are being held in every part of the country.

STANDARD OIL CO. OF NEW YORK (Incorporated)

ON THE MISSOURI 80 YEARS AGO.

Interesting Trip Up a Wateryway Now Described By Traffic.

"A trip on the Missouri river fifty years ago was one of the most interesting of Johnson of Mason, Mo., a reporter of The Kansas City Star. 'I came up from St. Louis to Brunswick on the William Campbell, a magnificent side-wheelers, which, with its tremendous load of freight and nearly 1,000 passengers drew about five feet of water. The voyage was full of incident. At St. Louis as far as the eye could reach were steamboats with tall feathered stacks, some arriving, some leaving and most of them receiving cargoes. The levee was black with trucks, drays, carts and passengers. That was in the spring of 1857 and a large part of the passenger list comprised pro-slavery men and free-people—going to Kansas to vote at the next election for their respective political faiths. They would get into some warm discussion in their attempts to settle the matter before election. 'We met boats almost every hour of the day. The river then was the great artery of trade, and all the towns I mentioned were important shipping points. On the wharves, formidable stacks of freight were always awaiting the first boat that came which was bound for the destination to which goods were marked. 'Not only did the boat stop at the towns but it would answer calls from various points along the river where the landing was good. We were four days getting to Brunswick, although the boat ran all night. One great source of delay was the frequent stoppage to 'wood up.' Timber was plentiful in some sections and lots of farmers ran wood yards to supply fuel. 'The river was low and the leadmen were kept on duty nearly all night. You could hear their meeky calls. 'Mark twain! Quarter less twain! etc., every time you woke up. It was a peculiar dirgelike sound, something like a wail. It wasn't loud, but given in the queer drawl of the rivermen was wonderfully clear. 'One night I remember the leadmen's cries were a little sharper than usual, and then suddenly the boat landed in to a big piece of the state of Missouri and stopped. It had run on a sandbar in spite of the two keen-eyed men in the pilot house. They spared all night with the great poles on the forward deck before the William Campbell was afloat again. 'But the pilots knew the river—that is they knew how it was the last time they were down it—but the shifting sands sometimes fooled them by building up a bar where there had been easy water a fortnight before. They studied the ripples on the river as intently as a schoolboy does his geography—only a great deal more so. 'In view of the immense traffic on the Missouri then it seems incredible that that important stream should ever have been abandoned. They navigated it in 1857 all right and I understand the channel was near as good then as it is now. With some industrious engineering work in the next few years it seems to me it could be made thoroughly safe, and American ambition is just as certain to develop good pilots again when the need comes. It's the only way to travel and enjoy what travel ought to mean."

The Undesired Answer.

The young, old thing, her tresses dyed, A beautiful ad for peroxide, And cheeks beamed with rabbit pad, Like voice for rouge a patent ad, Sat copy in a baby gown, And looked quite well, the shades were down.

All pensively she made her plea Unto a visitor, "Dear me, How time does fly in quickest way For I am forty-two today!" And she made answer, cynic elf: "How history does repeat itself!" —Town Topics.
